Home Education English Programme

A structured English programme for home-educated students in Key Stage 3 and GCSE, designed to provide a full English curriculum offer, consistent teaching, personalised learning and ongoing academic support.

Why choose the Home Education English Programme?

Unlike standard tuition, the Home Education English Programme provides a carefully planned curriculum with regular teaching, independent learning, assessment and ongoing communication with parents to support long-term academic progress.

This programme can also be particularly supportive for students who may find it difficult to attend mainstream school consistently, or who benefit from a calmer, more flexible and individualised learning environment where they can build confidence at their own pace.

The programme includes:

- Two individual teaching sessions each week, providing consistent teaching, continuity and regular opportunities to develop knowledge and skills.
- A personalised programme of study tailored to the student's age, ability, interests and long-term educational goals.
- Carefully planned curriculum sequencing to ensure learning builds progressively and no key areas are overlooked.
- Homework and independent learning activities, where appropriate, to reinforce learning and encourage increasing independence.
- Regular assessment and progress monitoring to identify strengths, address areas for development and track achievement over time.
- Detailed written feedback on completed work, helping students understand how to improve and build confidence in their learning.
- Google Classroom or an equivalent learning platform, providing organised access to lesson materials, resources, assignments and feedback.
- High-quality learning resources selected and provided where appropriate to support teaching and independent study.
- Ongoing communication with parents, ensuring families remain informed about progress, achievements and next steps.
- Advice and guidance on GCSE examination boards, specifications, set texts and examination entry routes, helping parents make informed educational decisions where appropriate.
- Support with examination preparation and long-term academic planning, enabling students to work towards their goals with confidence and a clear sense of direction.

Teaching Sessions:

- Each teaching session provides 2 full hours of teaching and learning.
- To support concentration, wellbeing, relationship building and effective learning, a 15-minute comfort break is included in addition to the teaching time. This means each appointment lasts approximately 2 hours and 15 minutes, while students still receive the full 2 hours of planned education.

Joint Home Education English Provision:

- Where two or more students, such as siblings or friends, would benefit from learning together, a joint Home Education English Programme may be available.
- Joint provision can offer students the benefits of collaborative learning whilst continuing to provide structured teaching, personalised support and a carefully planned English curriculum.
 - Suitability will depend upon the individual students, including their ages, current attainment, educational needs and learning goals. Joint provision is therefore considered on an individual basis and is subject to tutor availability.
- Parents interested in exploring joint home education for two or more students are invited to arrange a telephone consultation to discuss their circumstances, the suitability of joint provision and the programme options and fees available.
